Special Stress to Be Laid on Provis ion Requiring Ginners to Take Three Samples.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 16.-With the approach of the cotton picking and marketing season, the state Warehouse and Marketing Department, through F. C. Weinert, and Peter Radford, has just issued a statement addressed to the 7,000 ginners in Texas relative to the rules to be observed during the ginning season under the new Permagent Warehouse Act.

Because this law was misunderstood several times during the past ginning season, many complications arose. This season, according to an announcement, the department desires to aid the ginners and at the same time require them to comply with the law. Special stress is laid on that feature of the law which requires every ginner to take three samples of each bale ginned. The constitutionality of this phase of the law has been upheld in the higher courts.
